

Perceptions of Eyewitness Evidence

Principal Researcher: Assistant Professor Laura Smalarz
ASU School of Social and Behavioral Sciences

Purpose: This study is being conducted by faculty from the School of Social and Behavioral Sciences at Arizona State University and Duke University School of Law. The purpose of this study is to understand how criminal prosecutors perceive eyewitness identification evidence. We want to gain prosecutors' professional insights about eyewitness identification evidence in different crime scenarios.

The survey protocol: We are asking prosecutors to complete an online survey that takes approximately 20 minutes, on average, to complete. You will first read eight short descriptions of criminal cases involving an eyewitness and you will provide your judgments of the case and the eyewitness. Next, you will answer various questions about your perceptions of eyewitness identification evidence and will be asked basic demographic questions. All of your responses will be completely confidential and will not be linked to you in any way.

Optional compensation: You will have the option to receive a $25 Amazon gift card for completing the study. You can opt out of receiving compensation on the first page of the survey. If you do not opt out of receiving compensation, you will be able to obtain your compensation at the end of the survey, where you will be given a randomly-generated completion code. To get paid, you will click a separate link, and enter the completion code and your email address. This process will ensure that your identifying information (i.e., your email address) will not be linked to your survey responses. Within 3-5 business you will receive your electronic Amazon gift card via email. If you opt out of receiving compensation, you will not be given the randomly-generated completion code.

The survey will be available for your participation until we run out of compensation.
